This course explores the history of modern architecture and the dialog between architecture and technology, society, economics, politics and culture by using Chicago as text. Students will live and learn in the city itself and tour many historic and contemporary architectural and other sites. This is an immersive urban architectural and cultural experience.

Prerequisites

History 1200 or History 1300 or History 1310 or instructor permission.

Field Trip
Statement

This course is on site in Chicago from May 16-27 2016. Total costs are still to be determined. Registration will be through Continuing and Distance education.

Credit Hours   LEC: 3.0   LAB: 0   IND: 0   RSD: 0
  Total: 3.0

Justification for
new course:

There is no better city on earth to study the architecture of the last 160 years than Chicago. By living downtown and through multiple tours to historic and contemporary architectural and other sites, students will come away with a better understanding not only of architectural history, but of the history of modern America and of the complex interplay between architecture and modern society. Connections with Chicago area academic colleagues and architectural firms are being explored.

Middle East Politics will explore the political dynamics that had significant impact on the political, social, economic, and diplomatic affairs of the Middle East Arab countries. The state of Israel and its struggle for survival looms large in the region; and so does the survival and aspiration for sovereignty of the Palestinian people.

Prerequisites
Poli Sci 1200 or History 1200 or History 1300 or History 1310.

Field Trip
Statement

Credit Hours	LEC: 3	LAB: 0	IND: 0	RSD: 0
Total: 3

Justification for
new course:
This is a timely discipline that will help students gain awareness about one of the most important policy preoccupations of the United States. The level of American involvement in the region, its foreign aid programs and the positive or negative returns that American endeavors achieve will be discussed. Issues such as religion, tolerance, terrorism, and regime and state stability or lack thereof will be studied to expand the students' horizon of thinking.
